DID YOU KNOW? The term "upshot", meaning the final result, is an archery term. Until fairly recently, archery was shot in two directions. With backs to one target, the archers shot down the field. Then, they went down to score and collect arrows, turned round, and shot the "up-shot". The last upshot determined the final score or result. Hence, the term came to be used to refer to the final result of any activity.

Seen in Passing

by Ron Boorman

Had a couple of Robin Hoods in the past month after all these years, and had company as well with Dick Vaughan and Karen James. Just a little bragging on my part - - but, the main reason for all this is to show just how many of these are coming along now. At $8.00 per arrow, this could be spared with the new 3-spot face adopted by the Vegas Open and now our local Professionals. Saving money and having a better score with no glance outs - - makes one think doesn't it ? ? ? Many thanks to M.R.A.C. for their contribution to the B.C.A.A. Travel Fund, raising money at their annual Tune-up Shoot. Was very interesting to see some of the results of the locals at the F.I.T.A. 90 meters Indoor in Seattle. We had about 40 shooters on the line. Cec Meehan shot a 1309 and a 1296, Ralph Burgess had a 1255 and a 1296, Andy with a 1296, my 1235 and 1237. Made me wonder just where it is going to stop. Oh yes, Andy shot a 358 at 30 meters. By the way, Ladies, there was a gal there from Eugene Oregon who has been training with a release and a compound and using two fingers under the arrow who shot one of her FITA's at 1272. Made a trip to Tacoma on Saturday Night during the Seattle Shoot to visit the Breretons who in turn were having a Banquet for their mail matches. The dance part was a little dull, I've heard, 'till 4 large vans rolled up with two cars as escorts and the Canadians arrived. I'm sure they will never forget that gang. A special thanks goes out to Teko and her mother who put on one of the finest feasts for all the archers attending the FITA shoot - - Personal thanks, and a Happy Birthday to you Mom. B.C.A.A. Indoor Happenings - Don Rittaler traveling all the way up from the coast to see if the timing lights were working; 131 shooters on the line; Alberta with a good representation (10); Banquet was great and dancing too; Chuck and his angels ; 8 Pros; New division adopted for one of our Alberta visitors - Unlimited Barebow (no sight). WPAA had a meeting and decided to cover right across Canada with an Alberta Chapter, Sask. Chapter, etc. Good move to unite the Pros and have a Parent Body. The Arrow list from last month is being revised so sorry for the inconvenience.

WANTED - Bids for the 1980 Canadian Indoor Championships and 1980 Canadian Outdoor Championships. ( by the August 11 AGM )
British Columbia has 8 voting delegates at the Canadian AGM.
This is the same number as Ontario and two more than Quebec.

SECOND ANNUAL JULY-FEST TOURNAMENT

Kitimat Bowmen

Pentathlon tested nerves

The challenge was accepted. The prizes, a 16 foot aluminum canoe, a Winchester rifle, a set of hunting arrows and $250 cash made it difficult to resist. Twenty-six people didn't. They were the competitors in the second annual and best ever Rod and Gun Club Pentathlon held last Saturday.

Most of the entrants were handicapped by their unfamiliarity with at least one of the pistol, small and large bore rifle, archery and trap shooting venues.

Doug Flintoft, a Prince Rupert native and no exception to that rule being a virtual stranger to a bow and arrow, exhibited enough skill to grip the first place overall title and claim the coveted canoe.

This, donated by Alcan, was presented by public relations manager Brian Hemingway. The winner's name will be added to the club-based Johnston Barclay & Scaife Realty Ltd. trophy.

Flintoft's yeoman performance in archery plus his first place finishes in pistol and small bore rifle competition contributed to his good fortune. On his heels was Alcan's John Jeffrey, the overall runner up and the new owner of the Winchester rifle donated by Bravo's Welding Contractors. Right behind was Bob Coburn who accepted the third place overall title and 12 hunting arrows, provided by Boorman Archery Ltd.

Jeffrey fattened his wallet by virtue of the $15 second prize money in pistol shooting, the $25 top prize purse in large bore rifle and the $10 for third in the small bore event.

Unfamiliarity with the total arsenal of weapons was the drawing card for the competition and as Rod and Gun Club president Don Ferguson says, "It attracted a unique group of shooters. Nobody is expert in all events. It's a show of sportsmanship in that so many people accepted the challenge."

This is what the competitors faced. In archery, each man fired 20 arrows at 60 cm wide targets, 25 metres from the starting line. Arrows striking the rings closer to the bullseye scored more points with 200 needed for perfection.

For Jorgen Jorgensen, competition day was his introduction to archery. Beginner's luck blessed him with a 108 score, a result which prompted him to say, "I may take it up as a hobby. I didn't find it that hard. The key is concentration and having a steady hand."

Archery is a hobby for Walter Brix, the $25 winner chased by Ferguson and Jeffrey.

Hand and eye coordination and smooth trigger control were the key ingredients needed at the pistol range shoot off.

Flintoft championed this test, a little steadier than Jeffrey and Steve Bell, the runners-up. The standings resulted from the shooting of 20 rounds from a 22 calibre gun at targets paced 20 yards. Again, rings hitting nearest the centre counted for more points.

Alcoholic beverages were prohibited during the action but an appealing assortment of snacks and other liquid refreshments staved off hunger and thirst during the action, including the small and large bore rifle duel at the Fire Mountain range.

Twenty rounds of 22 calibre ammunition blasted at targets 20 yards away in the standing position was the description of the small bore event won by Flintoft who was challenged by Ralph Buchal and Jeffrey.

Jeffrey prevailed as the large bore rifle king ahead of Bell and Lew Truesdale. In that contest entrants shot 10 rounds at 100 metres distance targets in an upright stance and 10 rounds from 200 metres in the prone attitude. Large bore rifles are .343 calibre or better.

Excitement dimaxed in the final challenge, the trap shoot, which required a playoff round to end a three way tie. Bill Armitage of Prince Rupert emerged from this test of nerves as the winner ahead of Coburn and Brian Lundy.

The exploding of the 20 traps, set 16 yards away and fired at from four rotating stations, was complicated by gusty winds.

Regardless of the outcome, everyone had a good time. Wayne Harrison came all the way from Prince Rupert for the occasion. "I think it's a fantastic event," he said. "It stimulates interest in activities you've never participated in. It gets people from other clubs together and it's a lot of fun."

Steve Pegg, a Rod and Gun Club member agreed and said, "It gives everyone an appreciation of the other sports. I never enter to win. I came for my own enjoyment." Scores were verified and posted by Armetle Kennedy and Joan Coburn who handed out special crests, donated by Alcan, to mark the event. The action got under way at 9:00 am and finished at 7:00 pm.

This is from an article sent from the Kitimat Bowmen on a rather unique idea for a tournament. The article covers last year's events and the advertising for the shoot is also in this Archer. Archery was the most challenging event of the five shooting venues. Doug Flintoft captured the overall title and the first prize aluminum canoe donated by Alcan.

the Coaches Clinic

I think that every coach has at some time been asked, "What is the most important thing that contributes to accurate shooting?" Some might answer, a good release. After watching a lot of good archers do a lot of good shooting even though their release could be seen to vary from arrow to arrow, I must plump for consistency of aim, in other words, the ability to aim on the gold and to hold "on" until the release is completed.

To do that requires four types of muscular ability in all parts of the body, but particularly in the bow arm. Most other parts are braced in two directions. The body is supported on two legs, the string hand is anchored to the face. The bow arm stands alone. The four abilities are: strength to draw the bow, skill to hold it still, toughness to hold it long enough to aim, and endurance to continue to do that till the last end is completed.

STRENGTH is usually not a problem as the bow provided or obtained is selected to match the strength of the archer. But the beginner and many archers (you?) can't hold steady on the gold. The bow arm needs to be educated to acquire the skill.

SKILL. The arm can get that educated skill by doing a lot of shooting over many months or even years. It can be acquired much quicker and possibly better by deliberate training. Draw, aim and hold for ten seconds, then let down before the bow arm starts to shake. Repeat 20 times twice daily. When you find you CAN hold "on", your shooting will be much better. I find a week of that education will reduce my groups by half over what I usually do. Normal shooting does NOT exercise the muscles enough to educate them quickly.

Hank Wiseman

Port Alberni, B.C.

TOUGHNESS is needed to hold the bow on aim and continue to do so for the full time required to aim, hold and release, and to repeat it for every arrow of the end. Toughness in the bow arm can be obtained partly by any of the exercises for the arms that you have read in a dozen manuals and in this magazine from time to time. Add to those the exercise for skill. For this, you need to do less aiming and holding but a lot more drawing of the bow. Strive for 30 and later for 40 pulls in one session. When you can pull the bow 40 times, then three sessions per week will keep the arm in condition.

ENDURANCE can also be helped by the draw, aim and hold exercise; but it really requires all round good physical condition and is required to enable you to finish up a long round in the same condition and able to hold "on" as when you started. That means largely the cardio-vascular system. If your heart and lungs are good, you are not likely to tire so readily. Any and all exercises are good for this but include some running. A mile will be enough, or even a half mile. If you can run that far without any distress, you are in pretty good physical shape. Why run five miles when the time could be put to better use with other exercises that are more specific to archery.

You will see, of course, that these different requirements do overlap as do the exercises for them. Nevertheless, each does contribute a separate item to the whole.

I must pass along this tip I received, before the summer comes along. Mosquitos just love "Skin so Soft" lotion by Avon, so much so that they refuse to bite anyone who uses it. In other words, it is reputed to be one mosquito repellent that works.

QUESTION: How can I measure the tension in a bow string at various lengths of the draw? If I put a spring scale in the string, the string effectively lengthens as the bow is drawn and gives incorrect readings.

ANSWER: It is much easier and more accurate to calculate the tension. Draw the bow with a spring scale (an accurate spring scale preferably). Read the force (F) required to draw to that distance. Measure the angle formed by the string where it bends round the hook of the scale. To find the tension (T), multiply F by one half the secant of half the angle. That is, T equals F times  $\frac{1}{2}$  secant ( $\frac{1}{2}$  angle).

The secant can be found in any table of trigonometry functions. In case you don't know trigonometry, I worked out factors for a few angles. Draw till the string makes one of the listed angles, read the F, multiply by the factor listed for that angle.

Angle	Factor
170 degrees	5.737
160 degrees	2.879
150 degrees	1.932
140 degrees	1.462
130 degrees	1.183
120 degrees	1.000
110 degrees	0.871
100 degrees	0.778

The tension at brace height can be measured by putting the scale in the string and adjusting the length till the brace height is correct, or you can draw a graph and extrapolate for 180 degrees.

QUESTION: I have made many Dacron strings. I have always moved the swing arms of the jig  $\frac{1}{4}$  of an inch closer than the required length to allow for stretch. How much should I allow for Kelvar?

ANSWER: Sorry. I can't help you. My own jig is built on a length of 2 X 4 and is very strong. I wind on Dacron or Kevlar (linen or silk in the old days) tight enough to take up the stretch. I make no allowance at all. You will have to make a string or two of Kevlar and find out for yourself as YOU make it on YOUR jig.

It was so beautiful to see experienced archers getting pre-tournament jitters before the first line as if they were just new at our fine sport. We had an excellent banquet at the Village Green Inn and everyone enjoyed the Disco afterwards.

Thanks go out to the businessmen of Vernon for supporting our welcoming package (goodie bag). It is always a pleasant way to start a major tournament. I would like to thank Andy Woo and Wayne Ende for taking pictures and also the support we got from our local Daily News and our radio stations for their publicity.

It was a most impressive line with 66 Archers on this line one and 65 Archers on line two.

The facilities were excellent with bleachers for the viewers and some 20 feet of room for the Archers and their equipment.

Great fun was had by all at the B.C.A.A. Indoor Championships in Vernon. It was the largest ever with 131 shooters on the line. Those two lines of shooters were sure impressive!!! The Banquet (ah! Chicken Cordon Elue.) was delicious and the disco afterwards was toe-tapping to say the least. Rumour has it that the Vernon Club should be sending bills to (1) Don Buchner of Comox for demolishing his number 11 butt. We expect the same to be shipped by return Army Helicopter to our Camp Vernon. (2) Andy Woo (winner, by the way, in Men's Unlimited) owes us one 10 foot 2 X 3 without the arrow hole, please. (3) Don Rittaler owes us for a $6.35 bill from "Loomis" for the return of one slightly worn cardboard box without lights. (One junior may even now be catching #**@*# for taking the lights home uncrated back to Don, in Richmond...Ah well, such is life. Shoot on, Archers...

Tournament Director, Jim Wiebe, dancing with his wife, Joan.

We have decided to bid on the tournament again next year, April 5 & 6, same place, only next time I will be shooting and let someone else run things. (Look for three lines along with a special bowhunter's round.)

Bowhunting up North John Francis

A WINTER CAMP OUT

High, Fellow Bowhunters!

Well, we are now into the first part of April and starting to see signs of spring. Pussy willows are starting to come out on the south slopes and a lot of robins have worked their way back. But both can still get their butts froze off up here as April can be nasty.

When I last wrote, I mentioned that it looked like wildlife would come through this winter in good shape but I'm not so sure now. We had a lot more snow since I last wrote, which isn't good for wintering wildlife. We also had a mid winter thaw, which might be of help to some wintering game. By the time April is over, it should be more clear just how severe this winter die-off will be. It is March and April when the die-off from starvation takes place. If they go into late March and April in the process of starvation, they can't make it even if they get sufficient browse. They just can't come back once their body system is into starvation and is feeding off the bone marrow.

For a number of years, there has been something I have wanted to do during the winter. So has a good friend of mine, John Thornbury, as well as my old buddy, Ron McKay. Well, this winter we did it and it was a mid winter weekend camp out. We cheated a bit because the weekend was the middle of March but that still means plenty of winter up here.

John Francis

Prince George

John T. is an avid outdoorsman and conservationist and he doesn't hunt. He accepts others hunting but says he no longer can bring himself to enjoy hunting. I respect John's position as there are a lot of people who think John's way. Ron and I took along the bows in hopes of coming up with a rabbit stew.

We had our concerns about the outing. It had to be a pack in outing so we had two choices of transportation. One was snow shoes and the other cross country skis. Skis are faster but a lot trickier with a back pack on. We decided to use skis as we had the winter thaw and the snow crust should provide pretty good conditions. Actually, snow shoes and skis are useless in powder snow which is why we had to wait until we had a winter thaw to produce a crust on top of the snow. Anyway, we decided we would use the skis.

We chose a little lake, in the Chief Lake area about six miles back in the bush. Saturday morning arrived and there we were staring at six miles of deep snow through spruce, alder, birch and poplar. The area is quite flat so we didn't face any steep hills. Taking a spill on skis is one thing but with a fifty pound pack on your back, it's something else.

We have all done a lot of back packing but not during winter on skis. There are two important things I learned a long time ago about back packing. The first is never bring along anything you can manage without because it seems like every ounce quadruples its weight every mile. Stick to the very essentials and eliminate every unnecessary ounce you can. The excess weight we had this trip was cameras as well as various lenses but to me, they just have to be a part of the trip. It seems that even when I cut down, it is seldom I end up with less than forty to fifty pounds of pack. The second thing is don't go on an ego trip with a pack on your back. Most people are capable of a lot of back packing endurance but if you push yourself too hard and too fast, you will burn yourself out real fast.

To me, the first mile or two is always agonizing. I start slow and wait until the weight of the pack and discomfort settles in. It seems your body and mind takes time to adjust to the pack horse condition. Once your body and mind adjusts, you can pick up the pace to one that suits you and just plod merrily on for miles. Then I just enjoy the scenery and let my mind wander over many thoughts as the miles go by.

With skis any slip of the skis shifted the pack weight and you wasted energy regaining your balance. So one gets careful to make each ski movement a smooth one. The snow crust softened up and our skis sunk down about 4 inches, making travel difficult. None of us said anything but after about a mile I was really having doubts about the five miles still ahead. But I guess we are more stubborn than smart. We made the six miles but I don't mind admitting that I was some pooped at the end of the trail.

After a short rest at the lake, we got right at setting up camp. First off we shovelled down to the ground, through four feet of settled snow. If there are no blizzard conditions, a leanto in a deep snow pit is a much warmer place than any tent. Make the pit about ten by ten feet so you can have a fire in front of the leanto. The heat of the fire is reflected within the snow walls and with a roof of tarp or bows on the leanto, it is just like summer. We used a tarp for the leanto roof. Next, you cut down and limb a couple of spruce trees, (hope no Forestry people read this). The spruce bows are for about one foot of carpet on the floor of the leanto. The spruce trunks make the frame of the leanto. Next, we cut a whole mess of windfall for fire wood. We also cut up some big windfall for burning overnight.

By the time we got it all set up we had a right proud looking camp. A camp like we set up would have cost you at least fifty bucks a night up town, and I wondered what the poor folk were doing that night.

..Mid winter is different in the bush. In the summer, there is never a quiet moment as insects, birds, or animal noises are all around. But in mid winter, the bush takes on a deafening quiet. The only noises were some chickadees during the day. We never even heard the big bad wolf howling and there was wolf tracks at the lake. To me, just to hear the wolves howling is a precious thing. It

Bowhunting

Bowhunters are made, not born.

How many of you know, or are yourself.
"The instant Bowhunter" ???

How often have you heard of someone walking into an archery shop (at the best) but usually a department store and buying a bow, some arrows (not matched to the bow or the archer) a quiver, a package of precision instrument broadheads, a range-finder and even a camouflaged hat, and in twenty minutes he signs a cheque and is a full fledged BOWHUNTER. That is what we are getting out in the fields and woodlots of B.C. and if we don't do something about it it is only going to keep expanding. What are YOU going to do about it? Just sit back and let it pass; then bitch like hell when we start losing our hunting seasons and areas. Just because we would not get off our fat a-- and do something to promote and support the bowhunting programs that have been started by some of our older members!!!

I just had a phone call from Mr. Peter Halbig, one of the most successful bowhunters in B.C. He told me that he had just found a news article that he had placed in the Vancouver paper in 1956 trying to get bowhunters together. We have sure come a long way, haven't we ???

The B.C.A.A. has a Bowhunter Clinic program that can be put on anywhere in the province to inform these Instant Bowhunters that it is not all that easy and that there are things that they can learn to do right and get more enjoyment out of it. As Peter was saying, "I wish that I had had someone to tell me all the things there are to learn."

Morris Elliott

From the responses that I have received so far on anything pertaining to bowhunting, it has not been very encouraging to say the least. Then you ask, "Why should I belong, as they do nothing for me."

It is hopeful by some of us that Bowhunting will become compulsory as a part of the CORE program. Then, at least, a new bowhunter will have had some teaching in the art. We know that the B.C.A.A. can not reach everyone that wants to bowhunt, but we can be the guiding factor in what is covered in the CORE program. IF we start getting together and showing that we are interested, this program can become a reality.

I don't know about you, but I have plans on a lot more years following the game trails, and I would like to be able to do it here in B.C., as I think that we have some of the greatest hunting anywhere in the world. Yet, where are the bowhunters to take advantage of it? Do you know that in 1977 there were 146,449 bowhunting licences sold in Wisconsin alone? B.C. had just over 1300.

Let's get going and get things moving in B.C. Let's not have another 1956 to look back at and say, "We should have done something."

For BETTER BOWHUNTING

Junior Olympics CHAMPIONSHIPS

The number of participants was 105, down from 132 last year. The shoot ran a little longer this year for a number of reasons. Scoring was a problem because of the inexperience of the archers. PLEASE TEACH YOUR YOUNG ARCHERS HOW TO SCORE! A lot of points were lost on scoring. I will be putting out a technical package before the next shoot.

I would like to thank Don and Thanna Buchner and crew for a difficult job well done. Also, a very big thanks goes to the T.C.'s, Roy Jarvis, Vi Muir and Dave Ball for all their patience and a fine job. Thanks to all the co-ordinators and parents for bringing the car loads of kids.

Roy Jarvis, T.C. "Never worked so hard."

As JOP Chariman, I would like to thank all who participated. As you can see by the scores, there were some tight competitions. Some of you lost points by not recording your scores properly. If you mark the wrong score call the T.C. to change it, or the lower score will count. The T.C. is the only one that can change a score card.
