The Editor's Desk

Another Canadian Championships has come and gone. With over 200 archers from all across Canada, it must be close to a record. The facilities were excellent with a disco and dancing every night, a free wine and cheese, a free bar-B-que, the Friday night steak bar-B-que and the banquet. I understand the Alberta government is picking up $10 of the banquet tab so a $3 banquet is pretty good. The free camping on site was interesting. There were a lot of good sites (taken) so when we arrived late, we got a slightly sloping one. We promptly borrowed a table from Fred Usher, made our hello's to our neighbors (all B.C.'ers) and went to the party. We tucked in late and sometime after midnight it started to rain. Well, we slid down our campsite in the morning and went into Edmonton for breakfast and rain gear. excellent place down closer to the lake and Sandy Webb. The Unmarked Hunter was wet but was fine weather over a challenging course. a ski hill so, of course, there were no the angles, the ups'n downs, were difficult the ladies posted record scores in FITA but tional wind by Sunday for their FITA. It Lucille Lemay shot a 1234, Rose Ann Jackson (unl.) shot a 1286 and Sorrel Bowman (pro) shot a 1290.

We later found an right beside Dave and the Field the next day The course was built on trees. But the hills, and it was fun. Incidentally, the men had their tri- happens every time.

I counted 50 B.C. competitors and officials. We had 3 officials with Roy Jarvis, Neil Cosgrove and Fred Usher. We won some 24 medals not counting team trophies. The Juniors took home the majority of the prizes as seen by the following score sheets. I was surprized at not seeing any B.C. Professionals on the line. I was also surprized at not seeing any more than the 50 B.C. Archers there. We were so close to not take advantage of the tournament.

Notes from the A.G.M... Sylvio Bearegard is now a director at large for F.C.A. No other changes. The 1980 Canadian Outdoor will be held at Joliette in Quebec and the 1980 Indoor will go to Winnipeg. Ron and Rose Genge have been made Life Members of F.C.A. The Professionals are going after the Limited Division and the 3-Spot Face for next year. It will have to be presented to the Technical Committee at their next meeting for review.

Was very interesting to see the different ways that were used to obtain travel funds to help out Phil Talbot to get to Berlin, i.e. Colin Birkbeck shooting all day in his P.J. bottoms for a bet to go to the travel fund, government help, Maple Ridge Archery, Boorman Archery, Muir Archery, Al Wills Archery, Seaview Archery, Rick and Carol Mallett, friends of Fred and Doris Usher, New Westminster city, Richmond City, and also the Shoot-a-thon that Phil himself put on - - all in all was a real fine effort and shows all that when funds are needed, we can get them. Long ago congratulations are in for Dave and Wendy, who finally are engaged, and special congratulations are in for Mary Wills for the baby boy, also Cathy and Ron Cook, a fine baby, and the wedding of Rick and Bonny Walker, and showing up at the first shoot with matching Jump Suits (white for FITA). Was good to have an old friend call in to see me, Larry Jang, who is doing a little instructing in Archery again, also another fellow who left us about four years ago, Jack Farmer, who was just in for a visit and said to say hello to all on the lines. Dave Mann just won a $2500 scholarship to UBC (post grad) from Coaching Association of Canada. Jim Wiebe's first robin Hood, at 30m at MRAC's FITA Star, an 1816 into Jim McMurchie's 2116. Slid down the shaft all the way up to the pile without damaging the 1816 (Jim continued to shoot the arrow). Beautiful trophy for Bowhunter of the Year donated by long time bowhunter, Peter Halbig. It looks like it will hold alot of champagne. Larry McKay received his Master Bowhunter - Small Game award, finally. FITA Congress passed a resolution for unlimited number of stabilizers - effective November 1, 1979. Now we will undoubtedly see fewer on the line.

On Saturday afternoon, after the 900 was finished, everyone took part in a fun shoot with 6 # bows and flu-flus. We started off with a mini clout at 25m and then had an opposite hand flight shoot. We tossed arrows by hand and then had a balloon shoot. A game of horseshoes finished the evening games. Some stayed and had a bar-B-Que steak supper and a little getogether and sing-song.

All in all, I think everyone enjoyed themselves very much.

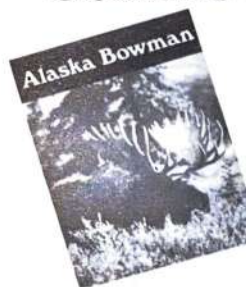

I'd like to say a special thank-you to everyone who worked and helped. Your work and help was greatly appreciated.

Deb Colyn

To do the second hold, one goes through the usual routine until ready to aim. Then, one takes the second hold. It is a sort of coming to full attention as the army might call it. One may draw in a bit more air, raise the chest, pull the elbows rearward to establish proper push-pull tension in the bow, straighten the back and stiffen the legs. If one is already in perfect form, there will be no actual movement or adjustment, just a mental re-alertness. then finish the aim and shoot. Both men's groups moved up into the gold.

QUESTION: Why do some archers never improve? In my club, the archers have been shooting for various periods of time from a few months to years. Each one has a score that they shoot near quite regularly. It may deteriorate and then improve but never gets better than a certain limit.

ANSWER: Whenever I go to a tournament or a clinic, I observe the technique of the various archers on the line. I would say that the majority have some shooting fault that could be improved by a coach or instructor. Unfortunately, many archers never ask for help, and many coaches, I for one, will not offer advice lest we interfere with another coach's system of instruction. Any archers' score may be limited by such a fault.

There is another reason for lack of improvement. You will appreciate that the speed and distance anyone can run is limited by his age, condition, and training. The same factors apply to archery. A person's top score is limited by his physical condition, co-ordination, degree of concentration, practice and training. Unless one or more of these factors is improved, the score will not. Each archer will have a more or less fixed score beyond which he will not improve until he puts more time into either practice, training, exercise, or all three.

QUESTION: We are told to deduct or add 2 pounds for each inch of variation of draw length from 28". That doesn't work out very well for me. It doesn't work at all for compounds. Can you explain?

ANSWER: To explain in reverse order, compounds are adjusted to the draw weight and draw length of the individual archer. They should never be over-drawn. The efficiency is less and the hold weight greater if they are under-drawn.

The formula established by A.M.O. to establish the working weight of a recurve is:
Subtract or add one twentieth (1/20) of the weight at 28" for each inch the bow is over or under drawn.

It works very well.

DID YOU KNOW? The expression, "a long shot", referring to the odds of a gamble, comes from archery. The implication suggests that a long shot with an arrow is not likely to be very sure to score.

Bowhunting up North

A couple of months back I was writing about the new approach to managing moose with the new proposed "Wildlife Management Plan." This time around, I want to write about Predator Control in the new program. Three of us from the Northland Bowhunters attended the regional meeting up here concerning the new plan. These meetings are a good idea as it allows public input into the new plan. In Prince George all clubs had reps at the meeting as well as individuals putting in their views and it is good when people take part and feel a part of the process of change. Possibly many of you attended a meeting in your region and if you didn't, you missed an informative event. Also, the accompanying booklet, (Proposed Wildlife Plan for British Columbia), is very informative in itself as it has many facts and figures that we weren't aware of before. The new wildlife plan is quite revolutionary in many ways, long overdue, and it just might be our last chance to maintain wildlife in good numbers in British Columbia.

The predator control part of the new plan is basically the system now being used by the Fish & Wildlife. I have always believed that the extent we control predators is a good barometer of our remaining wilderness. It seems that many people only tolerate competing predators in areas that are not accessible to people. Once we make access relatively easy into wilderness, many people start crying for the hide of predators. What these people are saying is that once people enter the scene, there is no room for the wolf and that we want all the wolf takes. We can't realistically say that deer are okay but wolves aren't and still believe we are practicing the principles of conservation.

We eliminated the wolf in so many parts of North America because we said eliminating the wolf will mean stable herds of chosen species like deer, moose, sheep, caribou, etc. We played that little game years ago and the chosen species still declined and now many people want to make the same mistake again. The chosen ones still declined because we were practicing the principle of elimination, not con-ervation. How the hell can we conserve any species by elimination of one of that species' predators and then we demand all of that predators' share? And if we were not demanding all of the predators' share, then there would be no need to get rid of that predator, would there? The elimination principle gets a little scary too because after we have eliminated all other competitors in the name of humanity first, what is the only species left to eliminate?

The present predator control program in this region is a good and reasonable one. To start with, ranchers do require control from individual animals or packs that are attacking their livestock. At present in the region 7, the F & W deals with the guilty predators with shotgun from helicopters. This is a good system as it deals with the individual praying predator and not on the whole species and other species. It is important that the present predator control program be applied and controlled by the F & W department. No self interest group should ever be allowed the control of predators.

Another aspect of predator control that we should give a lot of thought to is recreational hunters participation in predator control. I am not talking about the regular open hunting seasons on specific species like wolf, cougar, bear, etc., but the idea going around that hunters should take an active role in the predator control program. Here are a few ideas I have heard and read about from organized and unorganized hunters. 1. That there be a year round open season on predators for hunters. 2. That hunters also be allowed to use snowmobiles as well as helicopters for their recreational activity of controlling predators.

Well, first of all, let's start at square one and ask ourselves just what is the objective with predator control? If the goal is to control predators that are attacking private property, than why is it necessary or desirable for hunters to be shooting wolves all year round in all parts of terrain? Up here, camera happy snowmobilers in mid winter run moose to death in deep snow just to end with a picture of the moose frothing at the mouth with heaving sides. So why add to it with wild eyed hunters on snowmobiles? However, we might be able to bring smiles of glee to the faces of anti hunters if we allowed wild eyed hunters to use helicopters as some would probably fall out. And after listening to a few hunters' attitude towards the wolf, they would actually believe they are doing God's work by shooting wolves all year round and we really don't want to promote that kind of thinking, do we!

Sadly, the anti wolf issue will not end with this writing but I would like to relate my most memorable experience with wolves. I have had a fair number of contacts with wolves in the bush but this one special incident will always stick in my mind. It would be wrong for me to state my thoughts of that day as wolf fact but in my mind, on that day, we were definitely out hunted by a wolf pack.

At the time of the incident, I was hunting with a couple of young 16 year old budding bowhunters. One of the young fellows has long since dropped out of the scene but many of you know Dan McCuaig, as Dan is still very active as a bowhunter. The wolf is intelligent and they are capable of applying more than simple instinct and this little story is about a wolf ploy, a set up, a diversion tactic, and it left me with a high respect for the wolf.

The three of us were bowhunting for moose in the Chief Lake area around Prince George and there was no open season on the wolf during the bowhunting pre-season. During the week hunt, we saw and heard the wolves a number of times and one big dark gray one had one leg missing. Half of a front leg was missing and it must have been an old loss as that three legged wolf could move really well. We figured there were five in the pack. There was the three legged one, a big black one, probably the male leader, and three smaller gray ones.

One day we were hunting a swampy area for moose and we knew the wolves were also hunting the same area. On previous occasions we had attempted to bring the wolves in close for a better look by blowing a dying rabbit predator call but they only paid minimal interest in our attempts to bring them in with the predator call. A few of our bowhunters have had young coyotes run about over top of them by using the dying rabbit call but the wolves wouldn't quite buy it.

We got into about the middle of the swamp and all of a sudden the wolves started yapping. I decided to try the predator call for practice blowing it if nothing else. However, for some reason, the wolves' yapping picked up and they also started in to howling as well. We could sense that they were responding to our little game in a totally different way this time. The swampy area was thick with alder, birch, and poplar and visibility was down to about 20 yards maximum. Then, we could hear them running right towards us and I had to tell myself that "Little Red Riding Hood" was just a conn job and the wolves stopped just short of letting us see them in the thick bush. Then they would run off to the left of us, stop out of sight, yap and howl, and they run by us out of sight to the right. They never tried to flank us but kept their yapping, howling and running antics in front of us.

It was hard to tell how many there were as their sorties almost seemed to be going both ways at once. Sometimes the racket was left, sometimes right, and sometimes it was going both ways at once. All of a sudden, I realized the three of us were in a huddle; my mouth was dry. It sure was exciting and although one knows wolves don't eat people, there is always that little doubt that just maybe "Little Red" was for real. About the time the whole performance peaked, for some reason I looked behind me and my heart jumped right in my mouth. Standing less than 20 feet right behind us was that big black wolf staring right at us. Soon as our eyes met me turned and bolted off into the bush and within a few seconds the wolves' performance in front of us ceased and we never made contact with them again. To analyze it all would be difficult but I do know that there were better hunters out there that day than the three of us.
